

Introduction to Malaysia

Malaysia is a Southeast Asian country known for its rich cultural heritage, diverse landscapes, and thriving economy. It is divided into two main regions: West Malaysia, which is located on the Malay Peninsula, and East Malaysia, which is situated on the island of Borneo. This unique geographical division makes Malaysia a strategic location for trade and commerce in the region.

West Malaysia is home to the capital city, Kuala Lumpur, and serves as the economic and political center of the country. It is a hub for various industries, including manufacturing, finance, and tourism. East Malaysia, on the other hand, is known for its natural resources, pristine beaches, and lush rainforests. It plays a significant role in the country's agricultural and resource-based industries.
